Microsoft reaches RTM milestone with availability slated for Oct. 18th

Microsoft recently announced that they had achieved a great milestone: Windows Server 2012 R2 and Windows 8.1 had been released to manufacturing (RTM). This provides final software to Microsoft’s hardware partners for them to complete their final system validations and in turn is the final step before putting the next generation of Windows Server in your hands.

It may be time to change IT's role in your organization

Between people forgetting their passwords, the discovery of malware on the network, new servers making funny noises, the Internet going down and demand for new applications going up, the IT department is likely the most kinetic in the enterprise. Which may mean it's time for IT to undergo an operational upheaval, argues Aaron Brooks, director of innovation at IT supplier Softchoice.
